

Key Facts

- A traditional tale is a story that has been told and re-told for many years, and so becomes a story that almost everyone knows.

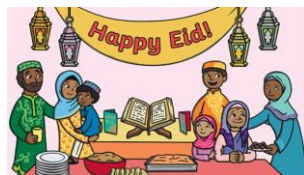

- There are lots of traditional tales which focus on foods including bread, porridge, gingerbread, sweets, picnics and more!
- In these stories there is often a problem with the food such as it being difficult to make, having too much of it, sometimes it's too hot or cold and sometimes it magically runs away!

- When we want to make foods such as these, we use a recipe to make sure we get the correct ingredients and cook it correctly.
- We can use our imaginations to turn normal items into new and interesting things.

- This month Muslims end their time of fasting (called Ramadan) and celebrate the festival of Eid.
